BTC 8-Hour Market Report

BTC ~ $82,000

Friday 16 Oct 2026, 15:50 Malaysia time (07:50 UTC)

CoinGecko 13:50 MYT: +1.3% 24h, about -1% on the week

Quick view	Bias: Neutral - short squeeze recovery vs hawkish Fed risk	Next 24h range: $80,500 - $83,500	Key floor: $79,800-80,000 (PPI low, put wall)	Big event: Weekly expiry 4pm MYT today; FOMC 29 Oct 2am MYT

1. Options - next 24 hours and upcoming expiries

- Today's weekly (16 Oct) settles at 4:00pm MYT, about 10 minutes after this report. After it, the next expiry is the Saturday daily at 4:00pm MYT on 17 Oct (small, typically a few thousand BTC).
- How big: the 16 Oct weekly holds about 18,029 BTC (~$1.48B at $82k), put/call 1.37, max pain $83,000. Puts dominate, concentrated at $78k-80k; spot sits above them, so most of those puts expire worthless.
- Which expiry matters: once today's weekly rolls off, the 30 Oct monthly (~140,844 BTC, ~$11.6B, max pain $78,000) becomes the main options force; it settles two days after the 28 Oct FOMC.

Expiry	Largest position seen	Size	Meaning
16 Oct weekly (4pm MYT today)	$78,000 Put	2,746 BTC (~$225M)	Main downside hedge; far out of the money at $82k, expires worthless unless a crash in the next minutes
16 Oct weekly	$80,000 Put	2,142 BTC (~$176M)	Was the support wall into expiry; its hedging support disappears after 4pm
16 Oct weekly	$90,000 Call	1,144 BTC (~$94M)	Biggest call, but far above spot; little effect
17 Oct daily / 23 Oct weekly	Not published	n/a	No reliable strike data this run; dailies are small; 23 Oct weekly is building

Fri 23 Oct, 4:00pm (weekly)	Not published	n/a	n/a	Not published yet

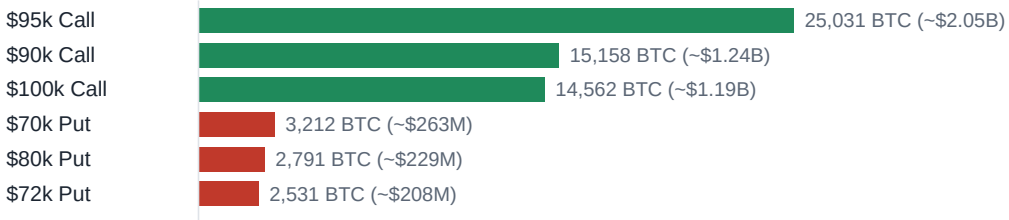
30 Oct monthly expiry - largest open interest by strike (Deribit, BTC; USD at $82k)



How options affect the market now

- Weekly pin ends at 4pm: into today's expiry, price was pulled between the $80k put wall and the $83k max pain. Spot at ~$82k settles close to max pain, so little forced hedging should follow the settlement itself.
- Support thins after expiry: dealer hedging around the $78k-80k puts helped hold the PPI dip at $79,800. Once those contracts expire, that support is gone, and a break below $80k could speed up.
- Monthly gravity points lower: the 30 Oct max pain is $78,000, about 5% below spot. The pull usually matters only in the final days, but it fits with a hawkish FOMC on 28 Oct.

- Calls are far away: the $90k-$100k calls (~$4.5B) are far out of the money. They only come into play if BTC breaks $85k and dealers start buying to hedge; that is not likely in the next 24h.
- Sentiment split: short-dated P/C of 1.37 and negative 7-day skew show hedging demand, while the monthly P/C of 0.48 shows upside bets kept into month-end.
- Volatility: DVOL was ~37.7 (12 Oct), implying ~2.0% (~$1,600) per day. Volatility often eases after the weekly roll-off until the FOMC.

Data note: this run could not reach the Deribit API directly, so options figures are the largest seen in published Deribit snapshots: 16 Oct weekly as of 15 Oct 12:50 UTC (CryptoTicker), 30 Oct monthly as of 10 Oct (CryptoTicker). The monthly may have changed since. USD sizes = OI x $82,000. DVOL is the 12 Oct reading (BIT research).

2. Price action and key levels

- BTC dropped to $79,806 on Thursday after September US PPI came in at 6.3% YoY (5.3% expected), then recovered above $82,000 overnight. About $937M of crypto positions were liquidated in 24h, mostly longs ($787M).
- Overnight range was tight: about $81,800-82,300 since midnight UTC. The 24h high is $82,508.
- The bounce has stalled under the lower highs of $83,115 (14 Oct) and $83,691 (12 Oct). The weekly trend is still slightly down (about -1%).
- Price is back above the spot-ETF average cost basis (~$81,500), a level buyers have defended this week.

Type	Level	Why it matters
Resistance 2	$85,000	Round number; above it, dealers would start hedging the $87k-90k calls
Resistance 1	$82,500 - $83,700	24h high, weekly max pain $83k, failed highs 14 Oct and 12 Oct
Pivot	$81,500	Spot-ETF cost basis; overnight trading held above it
Support	$79,800 - $80,000	PPI-day low and the old $80k put wall (gone after expiry)
Deep risk	$77,000 - $78,000	True Market Mean ~$78k, 30 Oct max pain $78k, put cluster $76k-78k

3. Derivatives, flows and sentiment

Metric	Latest	Read
Liquidations (24h to 16:00 UTC 15 Oct)	$937M total; $787M longs / $150M shorts; BTC $215M	Longs flushed out; leverage cleaner
Later 24h (CoinGlass via Invezz, 16 Oct)	~$317M; longs $168M / shorts $149M	Balanced; short squeeze drove the bounce
Funding (perps)	~+0.010% per 8h average (12 Oct); 'contained' after PPI	Neutral; no crowded longs
Futures OI	Up 6.6% week to 12 Oct; 'moderated' after PPI	Leverage partly reset
Options DVOL / skew	37.7 / 30D 25-delta skew -2.2 (12 Oct)	Mild put premium; calm vol
Spot BTC ETF flows	+$5.1M (15 Oct); -$261.5M (14 Oct); Oct to date -$540M	Demand stalled; no spot bid
Fear & Greed	57-63 (Greed; depends on index), from 69 the day before	Cooling but not fearful

4. News and macro

- Hot US inflation: September CPI (14 Oct) was firm (headline 3.7%, core +0.3% MoM). PPI (15 Oct) was 6.3% YoY, the fastest pace in almost four years. Market odds of a Fed hike on 28 Oct jumped to ~54% from ~21% (Coinpedia).
- Asia risk-off: Korea's KOSPI fell as much as 9% on 15 Oct (closed -7.6%), with Samsung and SK Hynix down 11-12%. The Nikkei dropped over 5% intraday. AI debt worries (CoreWeave credit spreads) also weighed. US 10y yield ~5.19%.
- Fed: Fed Chair Waller speaks at the IMF Annual Meetings in Bangkok today (time not confirmed). Any comment on hikes could move BTC.
- Geopolitics: the US Treasury issued new Iran- and Cuba-related sanctions; Trump said the US would not use nuclear weapons against Iran. Oil-linked ETFs are higher.
- Regulation/industry: the OCC expects final GENIUS Act stablecoin rules by end-October. MSCI's new exclusion rules could put Strategy and Metaplanet at risk. Strive upsized its SATS preferred to ~$630M.
- Security: Pirate Chain (ARRR) exploit minted ~39.8M ARRR; a $2M DAI theft was converted to ETH. Neither affects BTC directly.

5. Summary and prediction

BTC absorbed a hot PPI shock, flushing ~$800M of longs down to $79.8k, and bounced back to ~$82k on short covering. Today's put-heavy weekly expiry at 4pm MYT settles near its $83k max pain, so it should pass quietly, but it also removes the $78k-80k put hedges that helped hold support. Macro is the main risk: hike odds for 28 Oct are now about even, yields are above 5%, ETF demand has stalled (-$540M in October), and Asian equities are under heavy pressure. Positioning is cleaner after the liquidations and funding is neutral, which limits downside cascades for now, but buyers have yet to clear $83k-83.7k. 24h call: range-bound $80.5k-83.5k with a slight downside skew; a close above $83.7k or below $79.8k decides the next move.

Scenario	Chance	Range	Trigger
Base: range	55%	$80,500 - $83,500	Quiet post-expiry session, Waller gives no new hike signal, ETF flows near flat
Bullish: breakout	20%	$83,700 - $86,000	Hourly close above $83,700 with spot volume, ETF inflows return, shorts squeezed
Bearish: breakdown	25%	$77,500 - $80,000	Loss of $79,800 after the put wall expires; hawkish Waller, further Asia/AI risk-off, ETF outflows

- Upside signal: hourly close above $83,700 (failed high 12 Oct) opens $85k; confirm with positive ETF flow and rising OI with flat funding.
- Downside signal: a move below $79,800 without a quick reclaim, now without put-wall support, targets $78k (monthly max pain / True Market Mean).
- Next report: 11:50pm MYT (Fri 16 Oct)
