Quick view	Bias: Neutral, small upward pull into today's expiry	Next 24h range: $80,000 - $84,500	Key floor: $80,000 (put wall), then $78,000	Big event: Weekly options expiry today 4:00pm MYT (~$1.5B, max pain $83k)

1. Options - next 24 hours and upcoming expiries

- Next expiry: today, Fri 16 Oct, 4:00pm MYT (08:00 UTC). It is both the daily and the weekly Deribit expiry, so it is the only one in the next 24 hours that matters.
- Size: about 18,029 BTC open (10,410 puts / 7,619 calls), roughly $1.48B notional at $82.1k; put/call 1.37; max pain $83,000 (CryptoTicker, Deribit data 15 Oct). Moderate, not market-moving on its own.
- Expiry that matters this month: Fri 30 Oct monthly - about 148,348 BTC (~$12.2B), put/call 0.52, heavily call-weighted at $90k/$95k/$100k. Next weekly after today: Fri 23 Oct.

Expiry	Largest position seen	Size	Meaning
16 Oct 4pm MYT	$78,000 Put	2,746 BTC (~$225M)	Biggest hedge of the day; dealers likely long these puts, so they buy dips toward $78-80k.
16 Oct 4pm MYT	$80,000 Put	2,142 BTC (~$176M)	Second put wall right at the round number - first support.
16 Oct 4pm MYT	$90,000 Call	1,144 BTC (~$94M)	Largest call, far out of the money; will likely expire worthless.
16 Oct 4pm MYT	$87,000 Call	835 BTC (~$69M)	Upside lottery tickets; no pressure unless price rips.
23 Oct (next weekly)	Not found	n/a	No published strike data yet; will be updated in a later report.

How options affect the market now

- Pull toward $83k into 4pm MYT: today's max pain sits ~$900 above spot. With $1.5B expiring, the pin effect is mild but tilts the morning slightly upward if nothing else moves price.
- $78-80k is a dealer cushion: about 4,900 BTC of puts sit at $78k-$80k. Dealers who sold those puts hedge by selling as price falls, but if they are net long (bought from hedgers), they buy dips. Either way, a clean break under $80k before 4pm could accelerate as puts go in the money.
- Put/call 1.37 today vs 0.52 for the monthly: short-dated traders are defensive (CPI/PPI shock), while the big month-end book is still bullish call holders at $90k+. That gap tells you the fear is short-term.

- Month-end skew: the $90k-$100k calls (~$4.5B) are far out of the money and the monthly max pain is $78k. Into 30 Oct, the pull is lower, not higher, unless spot recovers to the high $80ks.
- After 4pm today: about 30% of the near-dated put hedges roll off; gamma support near $80k weakens, so realised volatility can pick up Friday evening and into the weekend.
- Implied move: 7-day ATM IV was ~32% on 12 Oct (Laevitas), implying ~1.7% (~$1,400) a day. Post-CPI vol is likely somewhat higher; DVOL could not be read this run.

Data note: the Deribit public API (index, DVOL, book summary) could not be reached this run, so all options figures are from published articles (CryptoTicker 15 Oct and 10 Oct, CryptoSlate 12 Oct) and are 'largest seen', not live. USD sizes = OI x $82,100. Monthly max pain and strikes are from 10 Oct and may have shifted.

2. Price action and key levels

- Hot US inflation hit BTC on Wed/Thu: CPI 3.7% y/y (14 Oct) and PPI 6.3% y/y (15 Oct) pushed BTC from near $84k to a low around $79,800-$80,400, its first dip under $80k in a month.
- Roughly $944M-$1B of crypto longs were liquidated in 24h, including ~$489M within one hour on Thursday morning.
- BTC has since recovered to ~$82,100 (CoinGecko +0.7% 24h), holding the $80k put wall; ETH ~$2,440 after a 6% drop.
- Asia risk was very weak: Kospi fell ~8-9% with a circuit breaker; Nikkei down over 5% intraday; Nasdaq futures lower. BTC held up better than Asian equities.

Type	Level	Why it matters
Resistance 2	$85,000-$85,500	$85k call strike; area of last week's highs before the CPI drop.
Resistance 1	$83,000-$83,500	Today's max pain and pre-CPI breakdown zone (CPI-day high ~$83k).
Pivot	$82,000	Current price; middle of the recovery range.
Support 1	$80,000	Largest round-number put wall on both 16 Oct and 30 Oct; held twice this week.
Support 2	$78,000	Biggest put strike today; monthly max pain.
Deep risk	$75,600-$76,700	30-day low, $76k put strike and the 20x long liquidation zone.

3. Derivatives, flows and sentiment

Metric	Latest	Read
Perp funding	+0.0041%/8h Deribit, +0.0046% OKX (15 Oct)	Neutral; longs are no longer paying up after the flush.

Liquidations 24h	~$944M-$1B (CoinGlass via news, 15 Oct)	Large long washout - often near a short-term low.
Spot BTC ETF flows	14 Oct: -$150.5M (CoinDesk) / -$261.5M (TFTC); 13 Oct: +$175.6M	October flows have turned net negative; 15 Oct figure not yet published.
Fear and Greed	53 (15 Oct), down from 62	Neutral - no panic despite the inflation shock.
Implied volatility	7d ATM IV ~32% (12 Oct); 25d skew flipped to puts (-2.4)	Options price a calm market, but the bid has moved to downside protection.

4. News and macro

- US September CPI (14 Oct): headline 3.7% y/y (from 3.4%), core 2.6% vs 2.5% expected.
- US September PPI (15 Oct): +1.3% m/m and 6.3% y/y, the fastest since Dec 2022; energy +10.8%, gasoline +20.3%.

- Fed: funds rate 3.75%-4.00%. CME FedWatch puts ~26-34% odds on a 25bp hike at the 27-28 Oct FOMC; a hold is still the base case.
- Asia shock: Kospi fell ~8-9% and triggered circuit breakers (Samsung -11%, SK Hynix -12%); Korea's regulator called an emergency meeting. TSMC posted record Q3 profit (+69% y/y).
- Sentiment split: CryptoQuant says 84% of tracked analysts are bullish, the highest since Aug 2025, while ETF demand is fading.

5. Summary and prediction

BTC absorbed a double inflation shock (CPI 3.7%, PPI 6.3%) and a near-$1B long liquidation, tested $80k and bounced to ~$82.1k. Leverage is now cleaner, funding is flat and sentiment is neutral, so the immediate downside fuel is lower. Today's $1.5B weekly expiry has max pain at $83k and a thick put wall at $78-80k, which should keep price boxed in until 4pm MYT. The risks are macro: Fed hike odds near 30% and weak Asian equities can push BTC back under $80k, and ETF flows are not providing a bid. 24h call: range-bound $80.5k-$83.5k with a slight lean higher into expiry; a close under $80k flips the bias bearish.

Scenario	Chance	Range	Trigger
Base: chop / pin	55%	$80,500 - $83,500	Expiry pin toward $83k; quiet macro Friday; funding stays flat.
Bullish	25%	$83,500 - $86,000	Hourly close above $83.5k, ETF inflows return, US stocks steady; short squeeze after expiry.
Bearish	20%	$77,500 - $80,000	Hourly close below $80k, more Fed-hike talk or another equity sell-off; puts go in the money.

- Upside signal: 1-hour close above $83,500 with rising spot volume - opens $85k.
- Downside signal: 1-hour close below $80,000 - targets $78k, then $76k.
- Next report: 3:50pm MYT Fri 16 Oct (10 minutes before the weekly expiry).
